DON'T CHANGE DRIVERS IN AN HOUR OF PERIL.

Wilson is Nation's Skillful Chauffeur, Hughes a Passenger, Says Charles A. Towne.

"Have you ever noticed how easy it is for some men to sit on the rear seat and criticize the chauffeur?" asks Charles A. Towne, of New York, in a speech which he is delivering in course of a transcontinental speaking tour in behalf of President Wilson.

"What a delightful irresponsibility. The powerful but delicate mechanism trembles with impatience. Slowly it creeps, like a nervous thing of life, out and in among the countless perils of the city street. Automobiles to the right. Automobiles to the left. Automobiles in front. Automobiles behind. Horses, trucks, milk-wagons, moving-vans coming and going in a welter of dangerous confusion. Horns sounding, buzzers screeching, sirens splitting the thick air with blood-curdling shrieks. Pedestrians flitting here and there emitting cries of inarticulate fear. Traffic policemen wigwagging complicated instructions. Elevated trains roaring overhead. The earthquake of the subway underneath.

"In front sits the chauffeur, every muscle taut, face set in rigid lines, eyes keen for every detail of the panorama. His hands are on the steering wheel, one ready to sound the horn, the other in easy reach of the emergency brake, one foot is on the clutch, the other on foot-brake and prepared to touch the accelerator if the car should stall. Progress is fitful, swerving to right, to left, stopping, starting, slowing, darting into openings of momentary promise. A false move, an instant's hesitation, a single act of precipitation on the part of the chauffeur, may spell ruin to the machine and injury or death to the passengers.

"An Incurable Meddler." But the smart Alec on the back seat is an incurable meddler. He knows it all. Nobody can drive to suit him. Even if success results from another's course, his self-confidence is not disturbed. "Sound yer horn!" he yells. "Throw her into second, you fool." "Turn to the left." "Stop her." "What's yer clutch for?" "Where's yer emergency brake?" "You don't know how to drive. And a deal more of unsought advice that can't possibly affect the car and may easily distract the chauffeur and confuse the crowd.

"Now, suppose the journey to be wrecked, the passengers maimed or killed. Who can say how much the ill-timed interference of the wise guy on the back seat had to do with it, misleading the rival vehicles, disturbing his own driver? And if, in spite of all the critic's advice, the chauffeur wins to safety, if the car sustains no injury, and no passengers are hurt, what then can the marplot say. Will the other passengers have a moment's patience with his claim that equal safety would have followed the rejected counsel? Will they not consider it worse than idle speculation? Will they not rather regard the back seat critic as one who periled action with dark counsel and was willing to risk ruin to all in order to have his way? Will they not rebuke the fault-finder and lavish gratitude upon the brave self-reliant, capable and successful driver!

It's the "Car of America."

"Fellow citizens, the car of America is beset with innumerable and unprecedented perils. The highway of the world is crowded with a mad rush of vehicles bearing the rival destinies of nations and driving ruthlessly over, around or through all intervening obstacles. Our chauffeur, firm of purpose, calm, capable and courageous, patient and tireless, has guided us amid the press and turmoil thus far without either damaging the car, injuring the passengers or relinquishing the right of way. In the name of common sense, in the name of the welfare of our country, in the name of the hard-won principles of international law, what answer shall prudent just, patriotic American citizens make to the cowardly, foolish and dangerous proposition that, in the very middle of our uncompleted journey, while the difficulties of our course are at their height, we shall pull our chauffeur from his seat, take his foot from the brake and his hand from the wheel, to the inexperienced and carping passenger in the rear!

"I think I know what their answer will be. They will say, in a voice that can be heard by every other driver on the international highway and in every governmental garage throughout the world: 'Woodrow, hold your place; Charlie, sit down in the back seat and be quiet!'"

BOY WHO WILL BE IN DEMAND.

One of the finest qualities in a workman is the quality of seeing what needs to be done and doing it without being told. One of the rarest in a servant in the house is the doing of things that need to be done without being told. Young men working their way through college are invaluable if they have this quality. A tool is left out on the lawn; there is a nail off the fence; there is a lock broken from the door; there is a window-pane gone somewhere. The boy who tends to these things because they need attending to, without specific directions, is the boy who, other things being equal is going to be in demand when he gets out into the world, and it is the attention to little things and the habit of observation which sees what needs to be done and then does it, which makes exceedingly useful men and women. There will always be a position for such persons. There will always be a call to come up higher.—Exchange.

CHURCH NOTICES.

Calvary Church, Fletcher. (Episcopal.) Sunday, Nov. 4th—Morning prayer and the Holy Communion at 11.00 a. m. REV. J. B. SILL, Rector.

THIS TIME IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

B. H. DePriest Has Summons Issued in Big Damage Suit Against Lee B. Weathers.

The following from Sunday's Greensboro's News will be of interest here:

"Editor B. H. DePriest, formerly of Shelby, but now of Spartanburg, S. C., has not been content with the development of just one side of his case against Lee B. Weathers and the Star Publishing company, of Shelby, as evidenced by his introduction of new proceedings against the man and the corporation. This time the proceedings are in the United States court of the western district of North Carolina, and are a suit for damages, to an amount which is so far merely speculative, inasmuch as the complaint in the case has not been filed. The summons has been issued by the clerk of court here, and the case is returnable at the December term of the federal court. After that, with the complaint of the plaintiff filed, there will be further lengthy delay to permit the filing of the answer and the actual trial of the case is therefore not imminent.

"Mr. DePriest was editor of a paper in Shelby when the Star, a contemporary there, published about a page pertaining to the rival editor. Incorporated in this page was a letter signed by J. P. D. Withrow, it is stated, and Mr. Withrow described as a prominent planter of Cleveland county, is also a party to the suit. Summons was issued for him also. The display in the Star named Mr. DePriest as a matter of ancient history, but its purpose is said to have been to declare Mr. DePriest an embezzler and to otherwise impeach his character. Shortly after this long story appeared, Mr. DePriest started criminal proceedings against the Star Publishing company and Lee D. Weathers, editor and proprietor of the corporation, but the criminal libel case ended in the failure of the prosecution.

"The trial was moved from Cleveland county to Newton, and there the final chapter of the first book was written the criminal case going off the docket.

"When Mr. DePriest has moved to Spartanburg, S. C., where he is still in the newspaper business and getting along better than at any time previously, but as stated, he has taken a new tack in seeking adjustment of his grievance against the Shelby paper and its owner.

"Of counsel for Mr. DePriest are Judge W. P. Bynum and Judge R. C. Strudwick, of this city.

"The amount of damages to be asked in the federal court will be large, it is stated, although the only figures available are an estimate that the sum will be $25,000 or $50,000." The case was brought in the district court because of Mr. DePriest's removal from the state.

Clothing can be chemically cleaned without danger by the use of ammonia or benzene soap. A safe substitute for gasoline is gelatinized benzene in which 25 per cent of benzene is added to a mass of soap, water and ammonia. It can be handled without soiling; the amount of vapor given off is light, and the bulk of inflammable vapor is small.

Safety devices are right, necessary and a good investment, but if the number of accidents is to be kept down, the man on the job must be taught watchfulness and caution.—W. C. Capron.

PROMINENT MEN ENDORSE PROPOSED AMENDMENTS.

At the election Tuesday four amendments to the constitution of North Carolina will be voted on. They in effect provide as follows:

1. To restrict local, private and special legislation.
2. To provide delays in trials by providing emergency judges.
3. To prevent special charters to corporations by the general assembly.
4. To prevent special charters to towns, cities and incorporated villages.

Senator Overman of Salisbury, Judge Pritchard of Asheville, Frank A. Linney of Boone and Congressman Page of Biscoe, have issued statements favoring these amendments. Their statements follow:

I beg to say that I am heartily in favor of the four amendments which have been submitted to the people and will be voted upon at the ensuing election.

I shall give them my cordial support and vote for them. This is one of the reforms that should have been adopted years ago. It will save money and time and enable the General Assembly to do its work in a more satisfactory way and give more time for deliberation. I have not yet seen any reason why they should not be adopted. LEE S. OVERMAN. Salisbury, N. C.

Replying to yours of recent date in which you request a statement from me as respects the four proposed constitutional amendments which are to be voted on in November, I beg to say that I am heartily in favor of these amendments and trust that they will meet with the approval of our voters. J. C. PRITCHARD. Asheville, N. C.

I heartily favor each of the four constitutional amendments to be voted on at the coming election. If the people are well informed in my judgment, they should and will give each one a large majority. W. W. KITCHIN. Raleigh, N. C.

I am in favor of each and every one of the amendments to the Constitution to be voted on at the coming election. The restriction of local, private and special legislation is possibly the most urgent one. The provision for emergency judges is most essential, and would decrease the cost of courts if the legislative enactment following this amendment is wisely drawn. The other two are very essential, both in preventing special privileges to corporations, and in preventing the work of lobbyists in such legislation. All these amendments, of course would be beneficial only if followed by wise enactments of the General Assembly, and only a perverted body of legislators could fail to do the right thing in carrying them out. F. A. LINNEY. Boone, N. C.

Replying to your letter of the 20th instant asking an expression of opinion from me as to the four amendments to the constitution to be voted on at this election, I have very carefully examined each of the four, and have no hesitancy in saying that numbers 1, 3 and 4, it seems to me, are absolutely essential, while number 2 is desirable. ROBERT N. PAGE. Biscoe, N. C.
